Yaizu City in Shizuoka Prefecture and TCN Sign Agreement on Regional BWA Services

-- Building a communications infrastructure for disaster prevention using the first regional BWA in central Shizuoka Prefecture --

TOKAI Cable Network Corporation (Headquarters: Numazu City, Shizuoka Prefecture, President and Representative Director: Mitsuhaya Suzuki, hereinafter referred to as "TCN"), which is responsible for the CATV business of the Group, today concluded an agreement on the establishment and introduction of a communications infrastructure for disaster prevention using regional BWA* to further revitalize and improve civil services in Yaizu City and the surrounding area.

Based on this agreement, Yaizu City and TCN are planning to develop a high-speed, large-capacity administrative wireless communications network covering public facilities in the city and to build public wireless LAN in shelters in the event of a disaster.

The CATV business of the Group is operating community-based services, contributing to the realization of secure, safe, and comfortable life for everyone in the community, as well as promoting the development of communications services for local governments in cooperation with the administrative authorities like the initiative we announce today. We will continue to strive to develop and enhance public services by working on local administrative authorities and local governments.

Under the vision of TLC (Total Life Concierge), the Group comprehensively proposes a variety of life infrastructure services closely related to people's life, such as energy, information and communications, and CATV. Our services are currently being used by 2.88 million customers. We will continue to proactively provide products and services demanded by the community and society and enhance our corporate value as a business entity supporting local people's comfortable life.

* Regional BWA: The radio system that uses radio waves in a frequency band different from that of major communications carriers, for the purpose of improving regional public services.
